An outstanding and moving read!Von Ein KundeThis is one of the best books I have read in quite some time. It is full of deep, rich characters and profound symbolism. I found myself wanting to read it slowly and fully so that I could savour the the story and allow myself the indulgence of getting to read some fine literature. It was the interesting and unique title that drew me to this book, and time and again Flanagan demonstrated the deep symbolism of the sound of one hand clapping. This is must read for anyone who enjoys a deep and telling story. Enjoy! 2 von 2 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. gorgeous story that comes full circle Von sallyann Absolutely beautiful story of people who lose each other and the heartbreaking, vulnerable steps taken to find each other again. I found that real emotion pored out of this book of real people, people with flaws, people who can't say the words that they know others need to hear. So much of the style reminded me of Alice Hoffman's books. An absolute beautiful story that I won't tire of reading. 1 von 1 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. An emotional powerhouse in beautifully written prose Von Michael Bowen I loved this book whose story outline I will not repeat here as it is covered in the editorial reviews above. I read this book slowly, purposefully, because I didn't want it to end, even repeating passage frequently to fully feel their emotional impact, which was considerable. It is written with prose sharp, crisp and frighteningly beautiful and disturbing, at once discordant and riveting, like a spear through one's own heart.

Kurzbeschreibung FROM THE WINNER OF THE MAN BOOKER PRIZE 2014 In the winter of 1954, in a construction camp in the remote Tasmanian highlands, when Sonja Buloh was three years old and her father was drinking too much, her mother disappeared into a blizzard never to return. Thirty-five years later, Sonja returns to the place of her childhood to visit her drunkard father. The shadows of the past begin to intrude ever more forcefully into the present, changing forever his living death and her ordered life. Pressestimmen "Enthralling and powerful" (The Times) "This is a confident and poignant novel and succeeds in animating a set of people rarely seen in literary fiction" (Guardian) "A rare and remarkable achievement" (Los Angeles Times) "Destined to be a classic" (Melbourne Herald Sun) "The Sound of One Hand Clapping achieves the difficult task of making clear and real the lives of those who normally stay hidden in history. From its wonderfully atmospheric opening to its touching conclusion, this is a heartbreaking story" (Literary) Werbetext A truly extraordinary work: vivid, passionate and utterly compelling . . . It opens a world that is strange, brutal and poetic at once, and ultimately achieves the kind of spirit-healing few novels do Niall Williams, author of Four Letters of Love
